Completing Your Record Book

Does My 4-H Story Really “Tell My Story”?

Does your 4-H story really capture what you have learned and done in 4-H? Or does it just give bare facts that don't truly represent the experience you are writing about? No doubt, you have developed important life skills, like teamwork and concern for others. So let your story tell that! Before you sign off on your 4-H story, ask yourself some questions: Does my story just include the basic details (who, what, where, when, why)? Or have I included the life skills I learned through the experience? Refer to the Targeting Life Skills wheel to identify the life skills you have learned. (<http://www.extension.iastate.edu/4H/lifskills/previewwheel.html>)

Look at the difference between the following 4-H stories. Each one is about the same experience, but the first just tells facts, the second tells what was learned. Which one really “tells the story”?

1. I went to sing at the nursing home in town with my club in December. We had a good time. I learned a lot. I want to go back. We sang a lot of new songs. The people sang along with us. I will be taking my singing lessons this week. Singing is fun. I am looking forward to going back to the nursing home.
2. Every month, my club performs at the local nursing home. I have learned that it is important to be organized since I arrange all of the sing along sheets. This community service project has helped me appreciate older people more and understand that each one has different needs and abilities. Through our performances, our club has learned more about cooperation, because we come together to plan and rehearse. I now have more confidence in speaking in front of others; each time we present, I talk about our club and invite the senior citizens to participate. I am proud that our club is doing this community service project and I look forward to learning more about the seniors the next time we visit the nursing home.

Which story, the first or second, best captures best what this 4-Her learned? Why?

Some life skills have been highlighted in the second story. Can you identify any others?

Now practice writing your 4-H story: First version - Just The Facts. Second Version - Life Skills Learned.

Which story best captures what you learned? Why?

Through 4-H you “Make The Best Better”. Let your story celebrate the best in you!

Developed by Ellen Williams, Expressive Arts 4-H Agent 1/10

4-H Teens Recognized

Kidz Can Cook

The big cook off was so exciting! Everyone had a variety of interesting meals and drinks, but the tension was high. We sat around patiently awaiting the judge's decisions on the taste, texture and technique of the chosen delights.

Happy to report, everyone received a ribbon of some sort which brought a smile to us all, now we could calm down and enjoy the delicious morsels. Our submitted detailed award winning recipe cards will be available for your trial in an up coming recipe book at the Farm Fair. Bon Appetite!!!

4-H'ers Hatching Project

This spring, the Brenner family, of the Fancy Feathers 4-H Club, helped the Lumberton kindergarten class with a chick hatching project. The Brenner children - Mark, age 10; Jason, age 7; and Abigail, age 5- visited the classroom and gave a presentation to the 2 classes on hatching chicks. Their presentation included parts of a chicken egg, facts about the hatching cycle and an activity and journal book the Brennens created to give to each student.

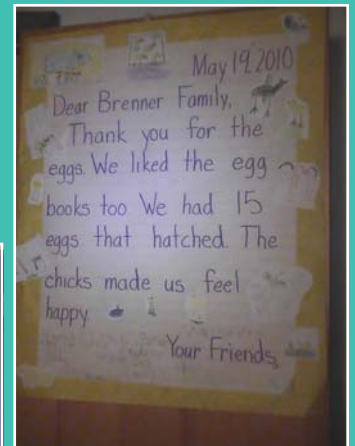

The Brennens collected fertile eggs from a few club members and took them to the school to help set them in the incubator. After the chicks hatched, the Brennens were invited to the school's curriculum fair where the chicks were the "talk of the show" with parents and teachers.

The Brennens arranged to donate the chicks to Fernbrook Education Center in Chesterfield, NJ. There they are sure the chickens will continue to promote 4-H values as many children will be able to experience the fun of chickens.

Fancy Feathers 4-H Club

It's been another busy year for the Fancy Feathers 4-H Club. We are now meeting at the Burlington County Animal Shelter in Westampton because of the size of our club. Several new members have been welcomed into the club this year. They are Austin Wilkes, Blair Schuler, Nick Schuler, Kevin Grady, Colleen McMahon and Deirdre Gang.

Our February meeting started off with an amazing announcement that poultry would have its own full size tent at Farm Fair this year. The growth of the poultry project area has been incredible and the entire club was very excited. Our club has also started to obtain some cage sponsorships. Public presentations were discussed and members signed up to start doing presentations at future meetings. In March, members continued working on their project record books and several did public presentations.

Club members continued doing public presentations at our April meeting. The winners of the club logo contest were announced. Farm Fair plans were discussed. Our club will be involved in several Farm Fair events. The county 4-H poultry show will be held on Tuesday evening to avoid the huge crowds of people and to provide more of a show experience for the 4-H members involved. Cloverbud members will show separately to allow them more time with the judge. Barnyard Bandits and Fancy Feathers 4-H clubs will be sponsoring the dunk tank at Farm Fair this year.

May was a busy month for our club. The club yard sale was held in order to raise money to purchase new club t-shirts and to cover Farm Fair expenses. Our May club meeting was a bonfire held at a member's house in Moorestown. Plans for Farm Fair were discussed and then everyone enjoyed relaxing around the bonfire. Several club members were involved in a chick hatching project in a classroom in Lumberton. The project was a success and the teachers, students and parents were very grateful for our club's participation. The Burlington County 4-H cookbook fundraiser was announced as a joint fundraiser with the Barnyard Bandits. Fancy

Feathers was also at the opening of the Burlington County Farmers' Market in Moorestown, NJ. Several families brought poultry for exhibit. The poultry always receives a lot of attention and support from the public and vendors at the market. Quilt raffle tickets were also sold at the market. Several club members attended the first annual Chicken Stock held in New Tripoli, PA. The event brought together poultry enthusiasts from all over the northeast for an educational and fun day.
